WAS A BLOODY FIGHT

Rebels Entrapped the Mexican Troops Into an Ambush

SLAYING THE MEN LIKE SHEEP

The Fight Lasted a Whole Day. Mexican Government is Pressing Citizens Into the Service.

DENVER, N. M., Nov. 25.—Two Mexican refugees who from the scene of the revolution today say that a battle occurred in Boca Grande county last Thursday. The Mexican troops were being several hundred were surrounded by the rebels in ambush and great slaughter resulted, the troops being utterly routed and fled for their lives. The refugees state that the troops were marching from Acapulco when attacked by the rebels, who suddenly rushed upon them from all sides. The fighting continued all day. The rebels claim victory. This report cannot be confirmed by other sources, as the scene is 200 miles from any railroad or telegraph communication.

Citizens Are Being Drafted.

The Mexican government is making strenuous efforts to recruit soldiers by drafting citizens into service, but the citizens are leaving the towns and hiding in the woods. Only one man was secured in Acapulco, a place of several hundred inhabitants. The citizens pressed into service are taken to the government and will revolt if a favorable opportunity is offered. The Mexican comes from the border were taken by rebels last Tuesday and horses and supplies were captured but were immediately released. The government is making strenuous efforts to suppress information.

Later reports are to the effect that when the attack was made upon the troops the officers were shot down, causing a panic among the soldiers, who were killed like sheep. The battle resulted in a decisive victory for the rebels. The Yaqui Indians have joined the revolutionists. There is every reason to believe the correctness of the report.

Revolutionists Were Lined.

EL PASO, TEXAS, Nov. 25.—Revolutionary armies here are slated today over a report that a federal detachment of cavalry and infantry were attacked near Acapulco Thursday and sustained very heavy loss, and the next morning they were attacked on all sides by the rebels and what was left of them surrendered at sunrise. The report is further to the effect that the federal commander, upon learning that the rebels did not return from Acapulco on his approach, was trying to evade that place and hurry to Palomas and fortify his men in the buildings.

Elders Capture One Hundred North Carolina Girls.

BALTIMORE, N. C., Nov. 25.—Sixteen young girls left Union county, North Carolina, yesterday for Utah, having been converted to the Mormon faith by several elders who are now operating in North and South Carolina and Virginia. It is stated that in the neighborhood of 100 girls have been persuaded to leave their homes by the missionaries of the Mormon church. Some of the citizens of Union county this week met three of the elders and requested them to cease their "missionary" work in North Carolina. They agreed to leave if it was shown that the citizens generally desired them to do so. Yesterday meetings of citizens were held in the various townships of Union county and resolutions requesting the Mormons to depart were adopted. Committees were appointed to notify them, and it is said to say they will leave that county, and without standing on the order of their going.

When she was examined from the stand, she instantly grasped a pitcher of hot water and threw the contents of the vessel into the face of Attorney Nelson. The prisoner, who was in sympathy with her, leaped to his feet and a riot was narrowly averted. The strain of six hours on the witness stand proved too much for Miss Cook, and she went violently insane. She is now in custody in this city.

Moore, it will be remembered, was said to have pushed his wife off her boat into the river at Buffalo several weeks ago. Miss Moore was divorced. Coughlin Will Testify.

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—The Coughlin trial will begin in earnest on Monday when Richard Scamman, special counsel for the state, will make the opening presentation of the case to the jury on behalf of the people. A feature of the trial will be the testimony of Coughlin himself, who will take the stand in his own behalf. His defense will be an admission and it is claimed that he will support this plea with a great mass of evidence from numerous witnesses. While the trial will not be as sensational as the prior hearing, there will be enough of dramatic interest in it to make it one of the celebrated cases of the country.

TRUST IN SOFT COAL

Operators of Indiana Fields Have Perfected a Monopoly

AND PRICES ARE TO BE PUT UP

The Combine Will Press Out or Force All Small Companies to Come to Their Terms.

BRANT, Ind., Nov. 25.—The operators of the Indiana field today succeeded in completing the organization of the largest trust ever organized in soft coal. Hereafter a consumer can make nothing by laying in his winter supply of coal in summer time, as the main object of the combine just completed here is to keep coal at the same figure the year around. The block coal operators of this district, after a four days' session, adjourned today. They admit that an agreement has been reached and that hereafter the Indiana Coal company of Chicago, which controls the Indiana block coal mining that traverses this district, will also control the output of the Indiana block coal mines with the exception of a few minor companies, which it will leave out or force to sell out in a very short time. The companies represented at the meeting are the Superior Coal company, Jackson Coal & Mining company, Clay County Coal & Mining company, I. McIntosh & Co. and the Crawford Coal company. President Johnson of the Jackson Coal & Mining company said today that the Indiana Coal company will hereafter have a charge of 75 per cent of the output of Indiana mines, and that it will probably secure the remaining 25 per cent soon. Mr. Johnson says the Indiana operators feel that they are now in better shape than ever, and that long delayed profits will be brought forth. The scheme will affect Chicago consumers more largely than any other point.

FLYERS MAY BE PUT ON.

New York Central Preparing to Resume Fast Train Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—It is said to be the definite purpose of the officials of the New York Central railroad to resume the western flyers as soon as possible. The Empire State express will be the wedge to a system of westward and eastward travel that does not pay the company but does not, on the other hand, make it necessary to cut dividends. The exposition flyer will probably be replaced by two trains, which will make a time express, will make faster time from New York to Chicago than the other trunk line railroads look for. The time from New York to Buffalo, added to the cut in time to be accomplished by the Lake Shore on the remainder of the route to Chicago, is expected to show a time schedule of probably less than twenty-four hours.

The schedule time on the other trunk lines is to be not under twenty-six hours. This is the time within which the Pennsylvania line pays to run a Chicago limited train. The new schedule of the Central to Chicago will certainly lead to complaints from the other members of the trunk line association. The Central officials will claim that they do not come under the jurisdiction of the trunk line association's executive committee, as the twenty-four hour trains to Chicago merely connect with trains on other lines. The separate directories and lists of officers on the Lake Shore and the New York Central will be shown to prove the separate management of the two roads. Such facts will not be disputed by President Roberts, but it will be probably claimed by him that the Central is evading the charge.

Fire Destroyed Eleven Storehouses Valued at $210,000.

STRIKERS RETURN TO WORK.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Nov. 25.—Today trains, both passenger and coal, moved better on the Mahanoy division than at any time during the week. The passenger trains, manned with old engineers and firemen and conductors, move on time. On the Hazleton and Beaver Meadow divisions they have been receiving empty cars, as nearly all the engines are working with mixed crews. All of the baggage masters have reported for work except the two at Mauch Chunk who are on the holidays. All of the yardmen at work are manned by regulars, but the third are still out. The men who have come back to work are not all being given their old positions. They are taken back and put to work wherever there is a place.

WAS TAITE MURDERED?

General Belief That He Was Killed for His Money.

EWES, Mich., Nov. 25.—What has become of Thomas Taite, who filed a pine timber claim years ago, is an unanswerable question. Even Taite never made any attempt to improve his land, the claim was contested and he was advertised for and asked especially to appear at the contest hearing. He did not do so, which was very strange. Nearly two years ago Taite went to one of the local bankers and deposited over $1,000. He received a certificate of deposit and departed. He has never been heard of here since. Many think he has been murdered in the woods by some one who knew of Taite's having this large sum of money and did not know that he had left it at the bank.

CADILLAC LOST ITS SUIT.

It Must Pay the Bonds Issued to Aid T. A. A. & N. M. Road.

CADILLAC, Nov. 25.—The case of Woonsocket Institution for Savings vs. The City of Cadillac has at last been decided by the United States court of appeals, and the court has ruled in favor of the railroad bond holders. The city of Cadillac lost its suit. The bonds amount to $30,000, and were first issued in 1885 in aid of the Toledo, Ann Arbor & North Michigan railway. These bonds were refunded in 1890 and new bonds issued, and it was upon these bonds that suit was brought in the United States circuit court. This court gave judgment for the plaintiff, and the city took the case to the new court of appeals, before which it was argued last June. About half the bonds are due and will be paid at once.

IVES LOST THE GAME

Wizard Schaefer Won the 4,000 Point Match.

DEFEATING THE MICHIGAN BOY

Ives Started in With a Big Lead, But He Got Stalled at Critical Points.

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—The final game was witnessed by over 2,000 persons, who were as enthusiastic as usual when high runs were made. Ives began playing auspiciously for his last 900 points. He found the balls in an advantageous position to start scoring and picked up twenty-nine before he was stopped by a kiss. Schaefer felt better physically than he was in the two preceding nights and said he was in better form to make the 1,300 points he needed to win out with. He started out, however, with a miss, but made up for it by scoring 71 in the next two innings. Luck was on Ives' side when he saved his position by a scratch kiss stopping a ball which had almost touched much more force behind it. Schaefer's third inning was distinguished by the execution of the most difficult mass draw seen in the match, extricated himself from a tight place. The balls did not seem to roll away from the wizard, however, and it caused him to remark to the referee: "They don't seem like the same set of balls." "They are the same set exactly," said the referee.

Ives Missed a Draw.

The Napoleon began to run above the century mark in the fourth inning, scoring 113 on hard style billiards, all earned by skillful manipulation of the balls and the lightest of touches. Two cushions being used for many shots. He missed a short draw. In the fifth, Schaefer's delicate touch and superb handling of the balls for a break of 280, won the admiration of the spectators. At 25 he had the balls anchored on the side rail and played on them that way for 100. While the wizard was rolling them over, Ives kept walking around the table nervous and sullen and only claimed that the balls were in bulk. "What's the matter with you, they are way out," said Schaefer in a disgusted tone and the referee said so too. Cries of "sit down" were heard from the auditorium. When 200 was reached the applause was deafening and Schaefer stopped to take a drink. At 255 he released his anchor hitting the balls, not being satisfied with their position and went to work in the side rail track, getting the anchor again. After his big run Schaefer was weak, scoring only 14 in seven innings.

Fiddled With the Balls.

For nine consecutive innings the contestants fiddled with the balls and when one would miss the other would follow suit on the same kind of a shot. Schaefer scored 135 and missed 140 during that period, while Ives missed twice and counted 81. Ives failed to add to his score in the fifteenth inning, but not so with Schaefer. He began by playing general billiards for 56, when he anchored the balls at the top and from 31 to 211 he scored and missed, but he was touching red and white spheres with perfect precision at each step. The yelling and cheering when the run stood at 200 exceeded any of the previous demonstrations. When 311 had been scored Ives watched eyes and hands, a freeze and the referee decided against Schaefer. In attempting a mass he fouled and gave way to Ives, who ran 75 by nursing the balls and playing to the cushions. The wizard retained in the sixteenth with a break of 153, counted mostly with the balls at anchor and nursing them along the rail. The closing of the gap in the scores was welcomed by the spectators, whose sympathies were with Schaefer.

The Wizard Was Anxious.

At the close of the sixteenth inning, the total score stood: Ives, 3,512; Schaefer, 3,465, a difference of only 47, against Ives at the beginning of the game. The wizard was anxious after the score and acted as if confident of pulling out a winner. The last half of the final game was the most interesting of the series. Schaefer continued to play billiards in brilliant style, yet cautiously and not taking any chances on a shot that was necessary. He gained on the Napoleon, to the satisfaction of the spectators, and Ives made a bold stroke to pull away to a safe distance. He chewed gum more vigorously and took long chances, in order to gather the balls in position. He had the luck, or faculty of making bad shots and then getting out of the whole he makes. In the nineteenth inning, Schaefer jumped up 79, anchoring the balls at 57, where Ives had them when he made his famous 53.

Schaefer Was Too Daring.

The wizard began to play daringly, but paid the penalty for it. He made a miss, but left the balls so that Ives had to play safe. These cautious tactics were resorted to by both players, but Schaefer counted on a hard three cushion shot round the table and the game went on with the total scores less than 100 apart in Ives favor. Schaefer kept complaining that the cold draught let in made the balls bounce for him. The balls were blamed by both players for small scores and had misses towards the last. The atmosphere was blamed for putting the balls out after scoring 23. Schaefer called for the balls to be changed, but the new set soon started on the jump and it was Ives' turn to kick. He had the old set replaced, but after a few shots the Napoleon said: "They are bouncing like rubber," and Ives coincided with his opponent, saying: "I can't do anything with them."

Claim of Fool Allowed.

Ives claimed that Schaefer touched the white ball first on a freeze and called "foul," which was allowed in spite of loud hisses and a few cheers from the seats. Ives raised the same cry again later on. But the referee ruled against him, exclaiming: "You talk as though you were crazy, and the crowd cheered and jeered. Schaefer played brilliant billiards towards the finish while Ives' playing was bad and kept getting worse. He was evidently rattled by the rapidly with which Schaefer gained on him. The wizard broke for 67 and 51 consecutively, all great billiards and at the close of the thirty-sixth inning he lacked only three of tying Ives. The score stood 3,816 to 3,813. He made a big miss on strong English, but Ives did worse and the crowd yelled with delight. At the close of the thirty-sixth inning the score stood: Ives, 3,817; Schaefer, 3,812.

Schaefer Won the Game.

It was still anybody's game at the end of the thirty-third inning, and intense excitement pervaded the hall. The score stood: Ives, 3,806; Schaefer, 3,807, the Napoleon having caught his stroke and played perfect billiards all around the table so as to reverse the pieces again. In the forty-fourth Ives increased his lead to 3,814 while Schaefer had 3,808. This gave Ives only 56 to go, but Schaefer made up the difference in the score in his forty-fifth inning, tying the score again, giving himself the lead which meant the match at that stage, with only 35 to go. Ives was unable to do anything and Schaefer ran out in short order. Ives scored at the end was 3,816. Total for night, 743. Schaefer, grand total, 4,000; total for night, 1,833. Grand averages: Schaefer, 21.25; Ives, 20.35; average for night: Schaefer, 20; Ives, 16.25-45.

The men from Ann Arbor did the most of their scoring in the last half. At the close of the first half, the score was 6 to 0 and that it was not a tie was due to a fumble.
